

CONNECT THE DOTS

WHISKERS

A dog's whiskers are known as vibrissae. They are embedded deep into a dog's skin and are packed with nerve endings that are stimulated whenever the whiskers touch something. This helps dogs navigate their environment, find small objects, and detect hazards for their eyes.

